Section 1: Introduction to the Quality Assured Care Learning Service

The Government is fully committed to a professional, well-supported social care workforce, and is committed to enhancing the skills of staff working in social care. It is of critical importance that the learning, development and training is of high quality, relevant and accessible.

Care providers currently have to replace almost a third of their workers each year due to staff leaving their jobs. High turnover worsens the quality of care. The Department of Health and Social Care (DHSC) is therefore investing in retention through better workforce training, recognition, and career progression, and has:

- Published a new career structure for care and support workers which identifies the values, skills, knowledge, behaviours and recommended learning and development for different roles so that all staff can develop in their careers and can be recognised for their experience and skills.
- Created a new qualification, the Level 2 Adult Social Care Certificate. This has been developed from the Care Certificate standards, and is accredited, portable and requires assessment of skills. It has been designed to ensure people in direct care roles have the most up-to-date knowledge and baseline skills required to provide support to people and succeed in their roles.
- Launched the new Adult Social Care Learning and Development Support Scheme through which eligible employers can claim varying levels of reimbursement for spend on upskilling the adult social care workforce in England.

This programme of work centres on identifying, providing, and funding better learning and development for the workforce. With the significant level of public investment being made by the Government it is important to ensure that learning and development is of good quality, easily accessible, meets the needs of the workforce and users of care services, and is trusted by the sector.

Therefore, DHSC has contracted Skills for Care to develop and launch the new Quality Assured Care Learning Service (QACLS). This service will review the quality of individual courses and qualifications delivered by training providers in the sector and quality assure those which meet a high standard and deliver good learning outcomes. The intention of the service is to ensure that the sector can easily identify good quality learning and development and trust that courses and qualifications identified and funded by the Government meet their needs.

Additionally, as part of this service, Skills for Care has developed and is launching a quality assurance process for delivery of the Oliver McGowan Mandatory Training on Learning Disability and Autism ('Oliver's Training') within the adult social care sector. From 1 July 2022, the Health and Care Act 2022 introduced a requirement on CQC-registered providers to ensure their staff receive training on learning disability and autism, appropriate to their role. This training is an important way to ensure staff have the right knowledge and skills to provide safe and compassionate care for people with a learning disability and autistic people and to improve outcomes for this population. We want this training to be an essential part of the learning journey for the adult social care workforce which is why the DHSC has embedded it within plans such as the Care Workforce Pathway and the Level 2 Adult Social Care Certificate.

The service is funded by DHSC and there is no cost to training providers to apply for quality assurance. Applicants will be provided with both guidance and support from Skills for Care. Quality assurance will result in specific courses and qualifications being:

- provided with a Quality Assured Care Learning Mark that can be used in promotional materials for the course or qualification
- recommended to DHSC to be considered for inclusion in the Adult Social Care Learning and Development Support Scheme
- linked to relevant role categories and learning outcomes in the Care Workforce Pathway as recommended learning.

The QACLS will be open to all training providers who meet the eligibility criteria. Initial applications will be for training providers who deliver Oliver's Training and courses and qualifications eligible for funding from the Adult Social Care Learning and Development Support Scheme.

Over time, it is the Government's ambition that all learning and development identified or funded through the Learning and Development Support Scheme will be quality assured through the QACLS. However, we recognise that this represents a significant change for the sector and will take time to achieve, therefore quality assurance of training provider's courses and qualification will occur in phases.

- Phase one

Training providers will be able to apply to be quality assured. Employers will be able to claim funding for courses and qualifications eligible for funding from the Adult Social Care Learning and Development Support Scheme that have not been quality assured.

- Phase two

Courses and qualifications delivered by training providers that have been quality assured will be identified as recommended options within the Adult Social Care Learning and Development Support Scheme and Care Workforce Pathway for the sector. Employers will be able to claim funding for courses and qualifications eligible for funding from the Adult Social Care Learning and Development Support Scheme that are not quality assured.

- Phase three

Only courses and qualifications delivered by training providers that have been quality assured will be eligible for funding. Employers will not be able to claim funding for courses and qualifications identified in the Adult Social Care Learning and Development Support Scheme that are not quality assured.

The quality assurance process will remain open to new and returning applicants throughout each phase.

The timings of phases 2 and 3 are subject to the successful completion of phase 1. For example, the Department of Health and Social Care would need to be assured there was sufficient capacity amongst quality-assured training providers to meet the needs of the sector before moving to a position where employers will not be able to claim for funding for courses and qualifications identified in the Adult Social Care Learning and Development Support Scheme that are not quality assured.

Please note: The Oliver McGowan Mandatory Training on Learning Disability and Autism is NOT currently aligned to the LDSS and becoming quality assured through the QACLS is not a route to funding.

The purpose of quality assuring Oliver's Training is to compile a list of quality assured training providers who can demonstrate they can deliver Oliver's Training to the ASC workforce against a bespoke framework, supporting employers to make informed decisions when commissioning Oliver's Training and improving the quality of training offered and access to and uptake of training within the ASC sector.

The guidance, along with the self-assessment tool, will support you to complete your application.

We strongly advise you complete the self-assessment tool ahead of commencing your application.

Section 2: Quality standards

The quality standards

The quality standards are a bespoke measure of quality learning and development for the adult social care workforce. They were developed with a working group comprised of training providers, awarding organisations and care providers as well as Skills for Care. They are designed to set a benchmark for quality training delivery and ensure that training identified, recommended, and funded by the government is of good quality and meets the needs of the sector whilst supporting employers to make informed choices.

Training providers applying to the QACLS will have to provide evidence which meets the quality standards designed for all training providers delivering to the adult social care sector, as well as providing evidence for the quality standards related to specific accredited qualification(s) and/or learning programmes and/or The Oliver McGowan Mandatory Training on Learning Disability and Autism.

The quality assurance process has two stages. Application stage and verification review stage. For more information about the verification review see appendix 4.

Quality standards for all training providers:

To be successful, training providers must meet and be able to provide evidence to support, the following standards. More information about what these standards look like in practice is in section 4, part 2.

1. Organisational values align with the values of the social care sector: Kind, compassionate and empathetic; Honest, trustworthy, and reliable; Respect; Courageous and principled; See the whole person; Flexible, open and learning; Proud and positive. They are actively implemented and upheld.
2. Policies and practices which support Equality, Diversity and Inclusion within learning provision are in place and are actively implemented and monitored.
3. Organisational quality assurance processes are in place, are actively implemented and monitored and lead to quality improvement.
4. Staff members and associates receive feedback, support, and developmental opportunities to improve their practice and ensure their subject and sector knowledge remains current.
5. Learning offers are shaped by robust analysis of customer and sector needs to determine key requirements and learning outcomes.
6. Robust initial assessments of learners are carried out to understand the learners' aspirations and needs to determine the most appropriate course of learning and the individualised support required to achieve that learning.

7. All learners are provided with information, advice, and guidance to support further learning and development, proportionate to the programme of learning undertaken.
8. The employer is actively engaged in the learner journey where appropriate to ensure learning is supported and embedded in the workplace to improve the quality of care delivered.
9. Learner and commissioner satisfaction is regularly measured, monitored, and acted upon to improve customer experiences.

Quality standards for training providers applying for their accredited qualification offer to be quality assured:

Training providers must meet and be able to provide evidence to support, the following standard. More information about what this standard looks like in practice is in section 4 part 3.

1. External Quality Assurance (EQA) reports, relevant to a range of adult social care qualifications, demonstrate they meet the awarding organisation's standards.

The quality framework for training providers applying for their Oliver McGowan Mandatory Training on Learning Disability and Autism offer to be quality assured:

The quality framework is a bespoke measure of quality delivery of the Oliver McGowan Mandatory Training on Learning Disability and Autism within the adult social care sector. More information about what this framework looks like in practice can be found in section 4, part 5.

The framework includes:

- a commitment to ensuring fair and transparent pricing
- a commitment to ensuring training offers are in line with the Oliver McGowan draft code of practice on statutory learning disability and autism training, and the final Code of Practice when this is issued.
- being able to meet or exceed the 9 quality standards designed for all training providers delivering to the adult social care sector.
- being able to meet or exceed the 3 additional quality measures set out below which relate specifically to Oliver's Training.

Quality measures

1. Trainers who are autistic or who have a learning disability are properly employed, paid and supported to engage fully with the role they are undertaking.
2. The training provider can demonstrate their experience of and commitment to working with people who are autistic or people who have a learning disability.
3. The training provider delivers The Oliver McGowan Mandatory Training on Learning Disability and Autism in a way that is consistently contextualised to the audience and service type.

This framework is designed to set a benchmark for quality training delivery and ensure that training identified and recommended by the government is of good quality and meets the needs of the sector whilst supporting employers to make informed choices.

Section 3: The Quality Assured Care Learning Service application process

Initially the Quality Assured Care Learning Service (QACLS) will be open to training providers who offer qualifications and training courses on the list of Eligible training courses and qualifications which accompanies the Department of Health and Social Care's \(DHSC\) Learning and Development Support Scheme for the adult social care workforce: a guide for employers. This is because DHSC wishes to prioritise the quality assurance of training providers who deliver courses and qualifications which are being funded by the government, to support the move to phase two of the service delivery of the scheme.

Following this, we may seek applications for new courses to address an identified gap in provision. These opportunities will be publicised to training providers with existing quality assured qualifications and courses as well as training providers who have not applied to the QACLS yet. Training providers are advised to sign up to Skills for Care's enews to be alerted to such opportunities.

The application process consists of an eligibility check, followed by five parts. Not every training provider will need to complete every part. A quick guide to applying is available on the QACLS webpage.

Training providers who have already had training courses and/or qualifications quality assured through the QACLS will not have to complete parts one and two again. You will complete the eligibility check and be invited to complete the relevant parts of the application form.

Eligibility check

All training providers must complete the eligibility check. The eligibility check has been introduced due to the high number of ineligible applications the QACLS has received. Once you have completed and submitted the eligibility check it will be reviewed within five working days. If you meet the eligibility criteria you will receive an email inviting you to complete parts one and two of the application which are completed and submitted together.

Part one

All training providers must complete part one of the application form. In part one you will be asked to complete information about your organisation. You must complete all questions in part one of the application form, inaccurate or missing information will result in your application being rejected. At the end of part one you will move directly on to part two.

Part two

All training providers must complete part two of the application form. In part two you will be asked to respond to questions and upload evidence which demonstrates how your organisation meets the quality standards outlined in section three. Once you have completed and submitted parts one and two you will receive a decision as to whether you have passed or not within fifteen working days.

If you pass parts one and two and:

- you are applying to have accredited qualifications and/or Oliver's Training quality assured you will then be invited to complete the relevant parts of the application via email.
- you are only applying to have your delivery of any of the following quality assured and nothing else then you will not need to complete any additional part(s) of the application process:
 - Skills for Care licenced programmes
 - Moving Up
 - New Directors
 - Digital leadership programme
 - Mental Health First Aid
 - Peer reviewed Positive Behavioural Support.

If you have been unable to provide evidence that demonstrates you meet the quality standards assessed in part two, your application will be rejected. It will be returned to you with some feedback as to why it has been rejected. You will have the opportunity to amend your application and resubmit it.

Part three

Only training providers who are applying with regards to their delivery of accredited qualifications will complete this part of the application form. You will only be invited to complete this part of the application form once you have successfully completed and passed parts one and two of the application process.

In part three you will be asked to answer questions and provide evidence to demonstrate that the accredited qualifications you deliver meet the quality standards outlined in section three.

Please note that 'accredited qualifications' are qualifications delivered by training providers who are recognised centres with Ofqual regulated awarding organisations. It does not include learning programmes that are accredited by CPD accreditation bodies.

Once you have completed and submitted part three you will receive a decision as to whether you have passed within fifteen working days.

If your evidence meets the quality standards assessed in part three, you will have been successful in your accredited qualification submission and those qualifications within the submission will be quality assured. If you are unable to provide evidence that demonstrates you meet the quality standards assessed in part three, your application will be rejected. It will be returned to you with some feedback as to why it has been rejected and you will have the opportunity to amend your application and resubmit it.

Part four

As part of a phased approach to expanding the remit of the QACLS, this part of the application form will be opened at a later date when we commence quality assurance of training provider developed learning programmes.

More information on part four of the application form is expected to be published in 2025.

Part five

Only training providers who are applying with regards to their Oliver McGowan Mandatory Training on Learning Disability and Autism will complete this part of the application form. You will only be invited to complete this part of the application form once you have successfully completed and passed parts one and two of the application process.

In part five you will be asked to answer questions and provide evidence to demonstrate that your delivery of Oliver's Training to the adult social care sector meets the quality framework in section three.

Once you have completed and submitted part five you will receive a decision as to whether you have passed or not within fifteen working days.

If your evidence meets the quality framework, you will have been successful in your Oliver's Training submission and your programme will be quality assured. If you are unable to provide evidence that demonstrates you meet the quality framework assessed in part five, your application will be rejected. It will be returned to you with some feedback as to why it has been rejected and you will have the opportunity to amend your application and resubmit it.

What happens next?

- In deciding whether your organisation has demonstrated that the quality of individual courses and qualifications you deliver are of a high standard and deliver good learning outcomes Skills for Care will consider whether your organisation has:

- provided information in relation to all the quality standards
 - provided accurate information
 - provided at least 3 pieces of evidence for each quality standard
 - provided sufficient evidence in relation to all the quality standards
 - provided current evidence of policies and procedures in practice
 - provided evidence that is in proportion to the type of organisation you are, the type of training you deliver and the size and complexity of your organisation
 - adhered to the guidance about 'narratives' and 'evidence' on pages 14 and 15 of this guidance.
- As detailed above, if any part of your application is rejected, you will receive an email including the reason for your rejection and advice to support a successful reapplication. At this point, you will be able to amend your application and resubmit it.
 - At each part of the process successful applicants will be notified via email. The email will contain an invitation to complete any further relevant parts of the application process if required. If you have successfully completed all relevant parts of the application process the email will confirm details of the training courses and/or qualification(s) which have been quality assured, information about the verification review, and information about the QACL Mark.
 - Skills for Care will recommend to DHSC that specific quality assured training courses and qualifications are included in the Adult Social Care Learning and Development Support Scheme and are eligible for reimbursement. The information provided to DHSC will include details about your organisation, the courses that have been quality assured, your organisation's delivery capacity and information relating to reimbursement rates.
 - Your organisation's details will be made publicly available on our website to support the adult social care sector to make informed decisions about their training provision.
 - All training providers who are successful in their application to have their training courses and/or qualifications quality assured will be subject to regular verification reviews conducted by the Skills for Care Audit Team. The evidence you provide in your application will be used to determine a risk rating which will inform the verification review schedule. See appendix four for further information.

Section 4: Application guidance

We strongly advise that you read this guidance thoroughly and then complete the self-assessment tool prior to beginning your application.

Part one - Organisation details

All training providers MUST complete part one of the application form.

1. Organisation name

Enter your organisation's full name including any 'trading as' details.

2. Address

Enter the organisation's full address, including postcode.

If your organisation is registered with Companies House this should be your registered address, otherwise this should be your head office's address.

3. What is your UKPRN number?

Please enter your UKPRN number if you have one, if not select 'not applicable'

4. Alternative contact name

Please enter the full name of the person who will be the alternative contact point for this application, should the primary contact not be contactable.

5. Alternative contact email

Please enter the email address of the person who will be the alternative contact point for this application, should the primary contact not be contactable.

6. Website address

Please enter the organisation's website address if applicable.

Please note: Skills for Care undertakes a light-touch review of training providers' websites at application stage to ensure that the information publicly available to potential customers is accurate and up to date. If your website is incomplete, out of date or contains inaccurate information this will result in your application being rejected on the basis of failure to meet quality standard 3.

7. Who do you deliver training to?

This is a drop-down menu, please select the description that best describes your organisation.

8. Where do you delivery training?

Please select all the regions in which you deliver training courses and/or qualifications or select 'nationally' if appropriate.

9. What type of organisation are you?

This is a drop-down menu, please select the description that best describes your organisation.

Please note: if you are a Limited company select Private Training Organisation.

10. What type of training do you offer?

This is a drop-down menu, please select all that apply.

11. How many staff does your organisation employ (please include associates)?

This is a text field. Please enter the total number of staff employed by your organisation including any training associates that you employ to develop, deliver or assess training.

12. Are you applying to have your Mental Health First Aid course quality assured?

Select Yes or No

If you select 'yes', you will be asked to:

- upload MHFA instructor certificates for relevant staff members.
- tell us how many learners you can support on the programme from 1st April 2025 – 31st March 2026.

Please note: Only training providers whose MHFA instructors have been trained and certificated by MHFA England are eligible to have their training quality assured through the QACLS.

13. Are you applying to have your Positive Behavioural Support programme quality assured?

Select Yes or No

If you select 'yes', you will be asked to:

- upload your PBS Peer Review report
- tell us which modules you are delivering
- tell us how many learners you can support on the module from 1st April 2025 – 31st March 2026.

14. What are you applying to have quality assured?

If you are applying to be quality assured for accredited qualifications and/or the Oliver McGowan Mandatory Training on Learning Disability and Autism you will need to complete part three and/or part five of the application following successful completion of part one and two of the application.

Please note: if you do not CURRENTLY deliver anything on this list select 'none of the above' as we cannot quality assure programmes you do not currently deliver.

This is a drop-down menu. Select the option or options that you are seeking quality assurance for:

- Lead to Succeed (Skills for Care Licenced programme)
- Well Led (Skills for Care Licenced programme)
- Leading Change Improving Care (Skills for Care Licenced programme)
- Understanding Performance Management (Skills for Care CPD module)
- Understanding Self-Management Skills (Skills for Care CPD module)
- Understanding Workplace Culture (Skills for Care CPD module)
- Moving Up
- New Directors
- Digital Leadership Programme
- None of the above

For each option you select you will be asked to tell us how many learners you can support on the programme between 1 April 2025 and 31 March 2026.

Please note: if you do not CURRENTLY deliver anything on this list select 'none of the above' as we cannot quality assure programmes you do not currently deliver.

Part two - Organisational quality standards

Guidelines for narratives and evidence

Skills for Care wants to ensure that all training providers can meet the quality standards regardless of size. The questions asked in part one of the application will help Skills for Care to contextualise the answers provided in part two of the application. Whilst all applicants must be able to meet the quality standards, we're aware that how you meet them will vary depending upon several factors including the type of training you offer, who you deliver it to, how you deliver it and the size of the organisation. This is about what works for your organisation.

Narratives

- You must include a narrative for each of the quality standards.
- Your narrative must support the evidence you upload and/or provide context to the evidence you upload.
- Narratives must focus on your provision of training courses and/or qualifications to the adult social care sector.
- Narratives are NOT a replacement for evidence, they are an addition.
- There is a word limit of 500 words for each narrative.

Evidence

- You must upload a minimum of 3 pieces of evidence for each quality standard. Please do not provide more than 6 pieces of evidence for each quality standard.
- We have provided examples of the 'possible sources of evidence' which you may want to provide. These lists are not exhaustive, you may have other sources of evidence you could include which better demonstrate how you meet the quality standard.
- Only uploading policy, procedure, process documents and blank templates is not sufficient. You must be able to demonstrate how your policies etc work in practice by uploading working examples to support your policy documents. Please note that examples of insufficient and sufficient evidence have been provided to help illustrate this point.
- Personal information should be redacted where applicable.
- Evidence can be uploaded in a number of different formats including audio (MP3) and video (.MOV).
- Evidence should be reflective of current practice and be up to date, for example surveys or feedback should not be more than 12 months old.
- Evidence should specifically relate to your delivery of training courses and/or qualifications to the adult social care sector.

- Evidence should be aligned to the training courses and/or the qualifications which you are seeking quality assurance for.
- Apprenticeships are not funded through the LDSS therefore an over reliance on evidence relating to your delivery of apprenticeships may result in your application being rejected.

If you are a care provider delivering training internally, please ensure that:

- Your application relates specifically to the training courses and/or qualifications which you are delivering directly rather than commissioning from an external training provider.
- All the narratives and evidence you submit are about your provision of training courses and/or qualifications not about your organisation as a care provider.

Any information you provide about staff development for quality standard 4 is about the staff who deliver training courses and/or qualifications not about the wider care workforce in your organisation.

TOP TIPS

- Number your evidence so that it can be easily identified and referenced if required. For example, evidence relating to quality standard 1 could be numbered QS1.0, QS1.1, QS1.2 etc
- Highlight key parts of your evidence.
- Do not upload the same piece of evidence multiple times. If your evidence is numbered, you can refer to evidence from other quality standards in your narrative.
- Link your narrative and evidence. For example, if your narrative states “Following observations of teaching and learning (OTLA) development plans are put in place with agreed timescales for improvement” then upload an OTLA with clear a development plan and timescales for improvement.
- Think creatively about the evidence you upload. What evidence best demonstrates how you actually bring your policies and procedures to life? A blank template tells us nothing. Do you have for example case studies, email trails, recorded feedback?

1. Organisational values align with the values of the social care sector: Kind, compassionate and empathetic; Honest, trustworthy, and reliable; Respect; Courageous and principled; See the whole person; Flexible, open and learning; Proud and positive. They are actively implemented and upheld.

In phase one of the Care Workforce Pathway, Think Local Act Personal (TLAP) were commissioned to work with people who draw on care and support to develop a universal set of values for the sector.

This quality standard is about how your organisational values align with the Universal Care Values. We want to know how you bring your organisational values to life to ensure that your staff, learners, employers, and people who draw on care and support know who you are and what you stand for as an organisation.

Questions you may want to reflect upon to demonstrate how your organisation meets this quality standard are:

- What are your organisation's values?
- How do you communicate your values to people you employ, employers, those who draw on care and support and wider stakeholders?
- How do you ensure your values are embedded in everything you do?
- Do you monitor the effectiveness of your values? If so, how?
- Is performance against your values measured with individual staff members and learners? If so, how?
- When and how do you review your organisational values?

Possible sources of evidence:

- Organisational values
- Organisational mission statement
- Stakeholder feedback
- Analysis of stakeholder feedback
- Appraisal processes
- Employee induction processes
- Employee handbooks
- Staff survey
- Analysis of staff survey
- Learner handbook

2. Policies and practices which support Equality, Diversity and Inclusion within learning provision are in place and are actively implemented and monitored.

This quality standard is to ensure that your organisation has policies and processes in place to support equality, diversity, and inclusion within your learning provision and that those policies and processes enable learners to achieve their full potential.

An equality policy should include, as a minimum: A policy statement; Legal framework; scope of the policy; roles and responsibilities; Equality, Diversity, and Inclusion (EDI) learning and development; communication; complaints; monitoring; review. Equality 'Statements' are not sufficient.

Evidence should demonstrate how your policy is actively communicated, how its effectiveness is monitored and what improvements have been made as a result.

Questions you may want to reflect upon to demonstrate how your organisation meets this quality standard are:

- Do you have an equality, diversity and inclusion policy or is it a statement, does it include a process for addressing EDI complaints?
- How do you communicate your commitment to EDI to employers, learners, staff, people who draw on care and support and wider stakeholders?
- What equality and diversity monitoring do you do and how does the monitoring you undertake help you to understand what you are doing well, what needs improving and what gaps in provision, access, or achievement you may have?
- How will you measure the success of your actions?
- How accessible is your learning provision and what reasonable adjustments have you made to ensure your learning provision is accessible?
- How do you embed EDI in your learning and development?
- Are your marketing materials, recruitment materials, etc. reflective of the communities you serve and the wider adult social care workforce?

Possible sources of evidence:

- Equality, Diversity and Inclusion policy.
- Accessibility of learning policy.
- Reasonable adjustments.
- Menopause policy.

- Bullying and harassment policy.
- Lesson plans showing EDI is embedded.
- Safeguarding policies for learners.
- Review processes covering EDI.
- Monitoring activity/gap analysis.
- EDI action plans.
- Recruitment and marketing materials.
- Stakeholder testimonials/case studies.
- Ofsted inspection report.
- CQC inspection report.
- Evidence of coproduction with people with lived experience.
- Evidence relating to how you capture and use the voice of people with lived experience.

3. Organisational quality assurance processes are in place, are actively implemented and monitored and lead to quality improvement.

In this quality standard we want to see that your organisation has processes in place to quality assure your learning and development offers, and that the implementation of these processes leads to improvements.

Questions you may want to reflect upon to demonstrate how your organisation meets this quality standard are:

- How do you know what you do well and what needs to be improved?
- How do you action plan to make improvements where needed?
- How do you know if the actions you have put in place have led to an improvement?
- Who do you involve in the quality improvement process?

Possible sources of evidence:

- Quality assurance strategy.
- Quality assurance policy.
- Quality assurance process.
- ISO 9001 certificate.
- Quality assurance flow diagram.
- Quality improvement policy.
- Internal audit report (training).
- Self-assessment report.
- Minutes of quality assurance meeting.
- Quality improvement plan.
- Complaints/appeals procedure.
- Impact assessment report.
- Business plan.
- Governance plans.
- Governance meetings.
- Observations of teaching and learning.
- Action plans.
- Risk register.
- Staff appraisals.

4. Staff members and associates receive feedback, support and developmental opportunities to improve their practice and ensure their subject and sector knowledge remains current.

It is important that the staff you employ, (this includes associates), are supported to develop their practice and maintain their sector and subject knowledge. What we are looking for here is information and evidence that demonstrates your organisation's approach to this.

Questions you may want to reflect upon to demonstrate how your organisation meets this quality standard are:

- Who is involved in the process of staff development and how do you and your staff decide what staff development is needed?
- When do your staff undertake their development activities, is their development time protected?
- What types of activities do your staff undertake to ensure their sector and subject knowledge is kept up to date?
- How do you measure the impact of learning and development activity undertaken by your staff?
- How do staff embed new learning and development?
- Do staff have the opportunity to share best practice and learn from each other - how is this done?
- Do you undertake observations of teaching and learning and how are these observations used to improve practice?

Possible sources of evidence:

- Learning and development policy.
- CPD records.
- CPD plans.
- Associate contract.
- Appraisal policies.
- Performance management policies.
- Peer assessment policy.
- Examples of reflective practice.
- Observations of teaching and learning.
- Staff surveys.
- Staff wellbeing surveys.
- Internal Quality Assurance (IQA) reports.
- Minutes of standardisation meetings.
- Associate trainer contracts.
- Evidence of strengths-based leadership.
- Certificates of learning.
- Staff training needs analysis and associated training plans.

Example evidence

5. Learning offers are shaped by robust analysis of customer and sector needs to determine key requirements and learning outcomes.

It is important to ensure that the learning and development opportunities provided to the adult social care sector are relevant to current and emerging local, regional, and national needs as well as the needs of individual care providers you work with on a daily basis. In this standard, we want to understand how you make sure this happens.

Questions you may want to reflect upon to demonstrate how your organisation meets this quality standard are:

- How do you engage with the employers you work with to ascertain their training requirements?
- Do you carry out training needs analysis with employers and what do you do with it?
- Do you offer bespoke training programmes – how do you work with employers to ensure the training meets their needs?
- How do you use the information you get from your employer engagement to inform your sector learning and development offer?
- How do you engage with the wider adult social care sector at a local, regional or national level?
- Are you a member of any groups, partnerships or forums and how do you use the information you get from being a member of these groups to shape your sector learning and development offer?
- How do you keep abreast of emerging sector needs and recognised best practice and how do you use this information to shape your sector learning and development offer?

Possible sources of evidence:

- Market engagement strategy.
- Individual employer training needs analysis or similar.
- Bespoke training packages you have developed.
- Stakeholder surveys.
- Analysis of stakeholder surveys.
- Minutes of local and/or national adult social care partnerships, working groups or forums that you are actively engaged with.
- Course mapping.
- Evidence of employer engagement e.g. minutes.
- Action plans as a result of stakeholder engagement.
- Examples of changes made as a result of stakeholder engagement.
- Minutes of relevant internal meetings.

6. Robust initial assessments of learners are carried out to understand the learners' aspirations and needs to determine the most appropriate course of learning and the individualised support required to achieve that learning.

In order to ensure the adult social care workforce is a high-quality well-trained workforce it is essential that learners are supported to achieve their full potential and meet their career aspirations.

We understand that in some training scenarios, conducting robust initial assessments with learners may not be practical or possible. We would still expect processes to be in place to ensure learners' individual learning needs are being met, and that reasonable adjustments are made where required.

Questions you may want to reflect upon to demonstrate how your organisation meets this quality standard are:

- How do you know that the learner is embarking on the right course of learning?
- How do you know what the learner's career aspirations are?
- How do you ascertain that the learner can achieve the qualification they are embarking on (where applicable)? For example, will their job role lend itself to being able to demonstrate workplace competency where appropriate, do they have the necessary functional skills?
- How do you find out what the learners' current skills and knowledge are?
- What types of initial assessment do you use?
- How have you identified any additional support needs the learner may require in order to complete the course of learning successfully?
- Where do you record all this information, how is it used and by whom?

Possible sources of information:

- Initial assessment policies.
- Initial assessment procedures.
- Initial assessment paperwork.
- Accessibility policy.
- Examples of how you have met the needs of individual learners.
- Learner feedback which speaks to the individualised support they have received.
- Learning needs assessment tools.
- Individual learning plans.

7. All learners are provided with information, advice, and guidance to support further learning and development, proportionate to the programme of learning undertaken.

How a learner progresses in their learning journey and career in adult social care is in part because of the quality of information, advice, and guidance (IAG) they are given by training providers and their employers. Good quality IAG throughout the learner's journey will help a learner to stay focussed and motivated and achieve the learning and/or career goals they have set themselves, whatever they may be.

Some courses of learning lend themselves to providing significant levels of individualised IAG, whereas others do not. We will review the evidence submitted in this Standard proportionately and in line with your learning and development offer.

Questions you may want to reflect upon to demonstrate how your organisation meets this quality standard are:

- How do you provide information about further learning opportunities to learners?
- Is the IAG you provide proportionate to the type of training course the learner is undertaking?
- How do you know what the learner's career aspirations are?
- Do you align your IAG to the Care Workforce Pathway?
- How have learners benefitted from the IAG you have provided them?
- When do you provide IAG to learners and who in your organisation provides it?
- Do you collect feedback specifically related to the IAG you offer and if so, what has this told you?

Possible sources of evidence:

- Matrix certificate.
- Individual learning plans.
- Evidence of dissemination of information in support of further learning opportunities.

- Destination analysis/reports.
- Learner feedback.
- IAG policies.
- Staff IAG accreditations.
- Case studies.

8. The employer is actively engaged in the learner journey where appropriate to ensure learning is supported and embedded in the workplace to improve the quality of care delivered.

The benefits of employer engagement in the learner journey are well documented. The learners are generally more motivated, and staff retention is generally higher when employers are committed to and involved in training. In addition, the more involved the employer is in the learner journey the more likely the employer is to have a member of staff that has the right skill set and knowledge to do their job role more effectively and provide a better quality of care.

Some courses of learning lend themselves to a high level of employer engagement, whereas others do not. We will review the evidence submitted in this standard proportionately and in line with your learning and development offer.

Questions you may want to reflect upon to demonstrate how your organisation meets this quality standard are:

- How do you help the employer to see the value of being involved in the learner's journey?
- How do you communicate your commitment to working with employers?
- How do you involve the employer in the learner's journey?
- How often do you talk to the employers you work with in adult social care, are your discussions well documented and coordinated?
- How do you plan learning and development activities with the employer?

- How do you work with the employer to ensure that the learner is able to embed their learning in the workplace?
- Do you carry out tripartite reviews with the learner and employer? How do your tripartite reviews help you, the learner and the employer to agree the learner's next learning and development activities so that on and off-the-job training are aligned?

Possible sources of evidence:

- Employer reviews.
- Employer surveys.
- Employer survey analysis.
- Individual learning plans.
- Learner reviews demonstrating employer involvement.
- Minutes of employer meetings.
- Employer engagement strategy.
- Training needs analysis.
- Case studies.

9. Learner and commissioner satisfaction is regularly measured, monitored and acted upon to improve customer experiences.

Stakeholder feedback is key in determining whether your organisation is meeting the needs of its customers and beneficiaries. Feedback can be captured in a variety of ways and can be quantitative and qualitative. In this quality standard, we want to know that stakeholder feedback is regularly measured and that, importantly, it is used to drive improvements.

Questions you may want to reflect upon to demonstrate how your organisation meets this quality standard are:

- How do you collect feedback about your learning programmes and their delivery? At what point do you collect it and is it quantitative or qualitative feedback?
- How do you analyse the feedback you collect, how often is it analysed and who analyses it?
- How does the feedback you collect help you to improve what you do?
- How does collecting feedback fit into your quality improvement plans?
- What action plans have you put in place following a review of learner and commissioner feedback?
- Does the way in which you collect feedback from learners and commissioners differ and if so, how?
- What are your key measurements of 'satisfaction'? How detailed are your satisfaction measures e.g. are they by programme, protected characteristics etc?

Possible sources of evidence:

- Learner/commissioner feedback forms.
- Analysis of learner/commissioner feedback.
- Action plans as a result of learner/commissioner feedback.
- Feedback policy.
- Quality improvement policy.
- Quality improvement plan.
- Self-assessment report.

Please submit your application.

Once you have completed and submitted parts one and two you will receive a decision as to whether you have passed or not within fifteen working days.

If you pass parts one and two and:

- you are applying to have accredited qualifications and/or Oliver's Training quality assured you will then be invited to complete the relevant parts of the application via email.
- you are only applying to have your delivery of any of the following quality assured and nothing else then you will not need to complete any additional part(s) of the application process:
 - Skills for Care licenced programmes
 - Moving Up
 - New Directors
 - Leading Through Digital Change
 - Mental Health First Aid

If you have been unable to provide evidence that demonstrates you meet the quality standards assessed in part two, your application will be rejected. It will be returned to you with some feedback as to why it has been rejected. You will have the opportunity to amend your application and resubmit it.

Part three - Accredited qualifications

Accredited qualifications

If you successfully complete parts one and two of the application process, you will be invited to complete this part of the application form if you're applying with regards to the accredited qualifications you offer.

Please note: accredited qualifications are qualifications delivered by training providers who are recognised centres with Ofqual regulated awarding organisations. It doesn't include learning programmes that are accredited by CPD accreditation bodies.

1. External Quality Assurance (EQA) reports, relevant to a range of adult social care qualifications, demonstrate they meet the awarding organisation's standards.

In this quality standard, we are seeking to ensure that you have met the quality standards set by the awarding organisation(s) whose accredited qualifications you are delivering.

1.1. Please complete this table for all the qualifications you deliver that are on the eligible training courses and qualifications. Please note qualification numbers must align directly to those on the list of eligible training courses and qualifications.

Complete the table using the details contained in the list of Eligible training courses and qualifications which accompanies the Learning and Development Support Scheme for the adult social care workforce: a guide for employers. You can add additional qualifications by selecting the '+' icon to the right of the table. Please add details as requested for all the accredited qualifications you are seeking to have quality assured.

1.2. Awarding Organisation(s) details (including centre number)

This is a text field. List all the awarding organisations whose adult social care qualifications you deliver and would like considering within your application for from the table above. You must include your centre numbers.

1.3. Please upload the most current external quality assurance reports relevant to all qualifications which you are seeking quality assurance for.

You must upload your most recent External Quality Assurance (EQA) report for all the accredited qualifications you have included in the table above. Quality assurance cannot be provided for qualifications where an EQA report (or equivalent) is not submitted.

If the EQA report from the awarding organisation you are recognised with does not relate to specific qualifications, please also upload evidence of the qualifications you have been accredited to deliver by them or upload a document detailing which qualifications the report relates to

1.4. If you:

- are a new provider with no external quality assurance reports please upload your centre approval documentation.
- have recently started delivering a qualification and have no external quality assurance reports please upload your centre approval documentation.
- have not delivered a qualification you are seeking quality assurance for in a number of years and have no recent external quality assurance reports please upload your centre approval documentation.

We are aware that some training providers may only recently have gained centre approval and will not have an EQA report for some or all the qualifications they are approved to deliver by the awarding organisation. If this applies to you then you must upload proof from the awarding organisation that you have met their centre approval criteria and are able to deliver the specific qualifications which you have selected from the list above. Quality assurance cannot be provided for qualifications where proof of centre approval is not submitted.

If the centre approval documentation from the awarding organisation you are recognised with does not relate to specific qualifications, please also upload evidence of the qualifications you have been accredited to deliver by them. Evidence could include but is not limited to email confirmation from the awarding organisation of the qualifications you are approved to deliver or a screen shot from the awarding organisations recognised centre portal listing the qualifications you are approved to deliver.

1.5. Can you confirm that you have met or exceeded the average national achievement rate for the qualifications you are seeking quality assurance for?

See Appendix 3 for achievement rates in Health, Public Services and Care for the 2022/2023 academic year. Select your response from the options available.

1.6. If you have not met or exceeded the average national achievement rate for any of the qualifications, you are seeking quality assurance for please explain why.

This is a text field. Provide details regarding which qualification(s) your organisation has not achieved the average national achievement rate for and why. Not meeting or exceeding national averages may result in your application being rejected but Skills for Care will take exceptional circumstances into account.

Please submit your application.

Once you have completed and submitted part three you will receive a decision as to whether you have passed or not within fifteen working days.

If you have been unable to provide evidence that demonstrates you meet the quality standards assessed in part three, your application will be rejected. It will be returned to you with some feedback as to why it has been rejected. You will have the opportunity to amend your application and resubmit it.

Part four - Learning programmes

As part of a phased approach to expanding the remit of the QACLS, this part of the application form will be opened at a later date when we commence quality assurance of training provider developed learning programmes.

Part five - The Oliver McGowan Mandatory Training on Learning Disability and Autism ('Oliver's Training')

The Oliver McGowan Mandatory Training on Learning Disability and Autism ('Oliver's Training')

If you successfully complete parts one and two of the application process, you will be invited to complete this part of the application form if you're applying with regards to delivery of The Oliver McGowan Mandatory Training on Learning Disability and Autism.

Please note: if you haven't yet delivered Oliver's Training, please don't apply to become quality assured as we can't quality assure training that hasn't yet been delivered. Please only apply when you can show evidence of implementation of the quality measures in practice.

1. Can you confirm that you are committed to ensuring fair and transparent pricing with regard to The Oliver McGowan Mandatory Training on Learning Disability and Autism?

Select Yes, No or 'Not applicable – we deliver to our own staff only'

Skills for Care will provide information about the cost of Oliver's Training to support care providers to make informed decisions about the training they commission.

If you select Yes to this question you will then be asked

1.1 Please describe how your organisation ensures your pricing model is fair and transparent.

This is a free text box. Please provide details about how your organisation ensures that the information you provide about your delivery of Oliver's Training is easily accessible and easy to understand. Please tell us if you advertise Oliver's Training on your website and if not, why not?

The information you provide should:

- be easy to find on your website
- make it clear what your price does and does not include e.g. VAT, travel, venue hire, refreshments etc
- make it clear whether your price is per cohort or per person. If it is per cohort, you should also include the maximum cohort size. Oliver's Training has been designed to be delivered to a cohort size of 30; if you are delivering to a smaller cohort size, please provide additional rationale.

Transparent pricing will help adult social care providers to compare prices and make an informed decision in what is a fairly new and varied training market.

- 2. Can you confirm that your organisation's training offer is in line with The Oliver McGowan draft Code of Practice on statutory learning disability and autism training?

Select Yes or No

The Oliver McGowan draft Code of Practice on statutory learning disability and autism was published in June 2023 as part of a public consultation. The purpose of the Code is to provide registered providers with the necessary guidance to meet the legislative requirement introduced by section 181 of the Health and Care Act 2022, that they must ensure their staff receive learning disability and autism training appropriate to their role. Training providers must ensure that their training offer for Oliver's Training aligns with the final version of the Code when this is published in due course.

- 3. Can you confirm that you are employing trainers that have been approved to deliver Oliver's Training, and are using the standardised materials provided by NHS England?

Select Yes or No

NHS England has an approved trainer process in place for Oliver's Training that will be replaced by an accreditation process when an accreditation body is appointed.

All providers of Oliver's Training, including those who are quality assured through the Quality Assured Care Learning Service, will be expected to become accredited when an accreditation body is confirmed. More information on accreditation will be provided in due course on NHS England's webpage for Oliver's Training: The Oliver McGowan Mandatory Training on Learning Disability and Autism | NHS England | Workforce, training and education.

- 4. Are you delivering Tier 1 one hour training for staff?

Select Yes or No

- 5. Are you delivering Tier 2 one day training for staff?

Select Yes or No

Quality measures

- 1. Trainers who are autistic or who have a learning disability are properly employed, paid and supported to engage fully with the role they are undertaking.

Training providers who deliver the standardised package of Oliver's Training must be able to demonstrate that trainers who are autistic or who have a learning disability are able to be employed on the same basis as those within the organisation who are doing a similar role. This includes remuneration for the job role that is been carried out. You can access guidance here on employing trainers to deliver Oliver's Training. They must also be able to demonstrate that they are providing the individual with the support they need to be able to engage fully with the role they are undertaking which includes providing wider support to ensure that the individual feels included and valued within the organisation they are employed by.

It is important to recognise that for some autistic people or people with a learning disability this may be their first experience of being employed or they may have had a bad experience of employment in the past. With this in mind, the employer must ensure that the onboarding/induction process is robust to ensure the individual fully understands their role, their rights and their responsibilities in the workplace and is appropriately supported

Questions you may want to reflect upon in order to demonstrate how you meet this quality measure are:

Recruitment

- Are you recruiting from the widest pool possible?
- How are you engaging with local/national representative groups to ensure you are accessing the widest pool possible?
- Are your recruitment materials inclusive?
- Are your job adverts/descriptions accessible?
- Is there an opportunity during the recruitment process for the individual to submit their Inclusion Passport/Health passport to you?
- What reasonable adjustments can you/have you made to support individuals during the recruitment process?
- Have you made individuals aware of the Access to Work scheme?
- How do you support individuals to find out what impact employment will have on their benefits if that is relevant?

Onboarding/induction

- How have you supported individuals to understand what to expect from you as an employer and what expectations you have of them?
- How have you ensured that individuals know where to go for any additional support they might need with onboarding?
- How have you made individuals aware of the reasonable adjustments you are able to make to meet their support needs?
- How have you made sure that individuals know how to, for example, fill in a time sheet, submit expenses, take sick leave or book holiday? Have you offered support in order to help them do these tasks if required?

- How have you provided person-centred onboarding/induction for the individual?

Inclusion

- What do you do to ensure the individual is able to play a full and active role within your organisation should they want to?
- Do you invite individuals to team meetings and how do you support them to attend and participate fully?
- Do you have employee forums, are individuals invited to be members of those forums and how do you support them to attend and participate fully?
- How do you support trainers to meet prior to delivering training together so that they are familiar with the people they will be working with?
- How do you know that individuals feel included and valued within your organisation?

Possible sources of evidence:

- Job descriptions.
- Recruitment materials.
- Contracts of employment.
- Induction process.
- Personal development plans.
- Employee feedback.
- Case studies.
- Accessibility policies.
- Examples of reasonable adjustments made to meet the needs of the individual.
- Examples of inclusion policies.

2. The Training provider is able to demonstrate their experience of and commitment to working with people who are autistic and/or people who have a learning disability.

The Oliver McGowan draft Code of Practice on statutory learning disability and autism training recognises that effective training involves people with personal experience in its design and delivery. Oliver's Training meets that requirement in that it has been developed, trialled, evaluated and is now delivered by autistic people and people with a learning disability.

It is therefore of equal importance that the training providers delivering Oliver's Training should be able to demonstrate their commitment to the same ethos of coproduction and codelivery in their wider organisational values.

Questions you may want to reflect upon in order to demonstrate how you meet this quality measure are:

- How do your organisational values align with the draft Code of Practice?
- Does your organisation have experience working with autistic people and /or people with a learning disability and if so in what capacity is this?
- What examples do you have of coproduction and/or codelivery?
- How do you capture the knowledge and skills that the people who are supported (and their families) have in order to help make your training and development offer better?
- How are you engaged with local or national organisations in order to facilitate closer collaborative working with experts by experience?

Possible sources of evidence:

- Organisational values
- Coproduction policy
- Examples of coproduction with experts by experience
- Examples of codelivery with experts by experience
- Examples of partnership working with local and/or national groups representing autistic people and/or people with a disability.
- Examples of feedback from people who are supported and their families about coproduction and/or codelivery activity.

3. The training provider delivers The Oliver McGowan Mandatory Training on Learning Disability and Autism in a way that is consistently contextualised to the audience and service type.

Standard 2 of the draft Code of Practice states:

“All staff receive training that enables them to explore how they will put their learning into practice. Examples include tailored materials and learning tools to help staff understand how to apply their learning to their specific work setting and the people they work with.”

Oliver’s Training has a standard training package which has been coproduced and independently evaluated and must be used by its training providers. Whilst the training is standardised in nature, it is delivered to a wide range of audiences such as General Practitioners, Dentists and Care Workers delivering domiciliary care services. In each of these cases, there are elements of the training which could be and should be contextualised to the different audiences undertaking the training.

NHSE have produced videos and case studies that relate specifically to adult social care services, and these should be used with members of the adult social care workforce during Oliver’s Training. These are provided to trainers once they have been approved to deliver Oliver’s Training.

Other opportunities to contextualise training experiences could and should be taken during break-out discussions and via the experiences of the experts by experience delivering the training.

Questions you may want to reflect upon in order to demonstrate how you meet this quality measure are:

- Have you used the adult social care materials produced by NHSE when you have delivered training to the adult social care workforce?
- How have you ensured that the examples you use during training have been relevant to the audience you are delivering the training to?
- How have you supported the experts by experience, where possible, to share experiences which are relevant to the audience you are delivering training to?
- Have you tried to recruit trainers with relevant experience of services where possible?

- Do you always know who is attending the training you have been commissioned to deliver? If not, how can you ensure you find out so that you can plan the training more effectively to meet the needs of the people in the room?
- How do you use the information you have about who will be attending the training to plan ahead?

Possible sources of evidence:

- Learner feedback
- Analysis of learner feedback
- Examples of contextualisation to your audience.
- Feedback from care providers.
- Case study

Please submit your application.

Once you have completed and submitted part five you will receive a decision as to whether you have passed or not within fifteen working days.

If you have been unable to provide evidence that demonstrates you meet the quality standards assessed in part five, your application will be rejected. It will be returned to you with some feedback as to why it has been rejected. You will have the opportunity to amend your application and resubmit it.

Section 5: Complaints and compliments

It is our aim to give the best possible service in all areas of our work. To enable us to do this, we need to know how you feel about how we do our work. We welcome your comments on any aspect of Skills for Care's service whether these are positive, negative or suggestions for improvement. Please see the Skills for Care Feedback Policy for more information.

Appendix 1: Glossary

Accredited qualifications	Qualifications delivered by learning providers who are recognised centres with Ofqual regulated awarding organisations. It does not include learning programmes that are accredited by CPD accreditation bodies.
Equality	Equality is about ensuring that everyone has the same opportunities, and no one is treated differently or discriminated against because of their personal characteristics. These are known as 'protected characteristics' under the Equality Act 2010.
Diversity	Diversity is about recognising, valuing and taking account of people's different backgrounds, knowledge, skills, and experiences.
Inclusion	Inclusion is where differences between people and groups are seen as a benefit, and where people feel comfortable to share their perspectives and differences, knowing that their opinions and ideas are valued.
Reasonable adjustments	Changes an employer makes to remove or reduce a disadvantage related to someone's disability.
Contextualised	To consider something or to help others consider something in the situation within which it exists or happens.
Quality assurance	A process to determine if a product or service meets quality standards.
Insufficient evidence	Evidence is considered insufficient when it does not demonstrate that the written policy, procedure or narrative has been followed in practice, reviewed and improved upon.
Sufficient evidence	Evidence is considered sufficient when it clearly demonstrates that the written policy, procedure or narrative has been followed in practice, reviewed and improved upon.

Appendix 2: 'Further education and skills' statistics

Publication 9 May 2024

2022/23 Academic year

Health, Public Services and Care

Qualification level	Qualification type	Achievement rate (%)
Level 2	Award	87.5
Level 2	Certificate	85.5
Level 2	Diploma	79.2
Level 3	Award	90.6
Level 3	Certificate	80.6
Level 3	Diploma	80.8
Level 4+	Certificate	80
Level 4+	Diploma	71.3

1. Achievement rates are based on the individual qualification aims that were completed in the relevant year (Hybrid End Year). They are calculated as the number of aims achieved divided by the number started, excluding the aims of any learners that transferred onto another qualification within the same institution.
2. Achievement rates are calculated according to the Education & Training Qualification Achievement Rate business rules. These documents are available on the gov.uk website:

Appendix 3: Frequently asked questions

Does it cost to have my courses quality assured through the Quality Assured Care Learning Service?

The Quality Assured Care Learning Service is funded by DHSC so there is no cost to training providers to access the QACLS and apply for quality assurance.

How does the new Quality Assured Care Learning Service differ from Skills for Care endorsement?

The Skills for Care endorsement scheme took a holistic view of the training provider to determine if they had the right policies, procedures and processes in place to be a good quality training provider.

The Quality Assured Care Learning Service reviews the quality of individual courses and qualifications delivered by training providers to ensure that training and development is of good quality, easily accessible, meet the needs of the workforce and users of care services.

How does the Quality Assured Care Learning Service link to the Care Workforce Pathway?

Courses and qualifications which meet the quality standards will be linked to relevant role categories and learning outcomes in the Care Workforce Pathway as recommended learning.

How is the Quality Assured Care Learning Service linked to the Adult Social Care Learning and Development Support Scheme fund?

Successfully meeting the quality standards will result in specific courses and qualifications being recommended to DHSC to be considered for inclusion in the Adult Social Care Learning and Development Support Scheme. DHSC will consider this recommendation when updating the course and qualification list.

What benefits are there to becoming quality assured through the Quality Assured Care Learning Service?

Successfully meeting the quality standards will result in specific courses and qualifications being:

- provided with a Quality Assured Care Learning Mark that can be used in promotion materials for the course or qualification
- recommended to DHSC to be considered for inclusion in the Adult Social Care Learning and Development Support Scheme
- linked to relevant role categories and learning outcomes in the Care Workforce Pathway as recommended learning

- over time, it is the government's ambition that all training and development identified or funded through the Learning and Development Support Scheme will be quality assured by the Quality Assured Care Learning Service.

Why has the Quality Assured Care Learning Service been launched?

DHSC has contracted Skills for Care to develop and launch a new Quality Assured Care Learning Service. The QACLS will review the quality of individual courses and qualifications delivered by training providers in the sector. Those which meet a high standard and deliver good learning outcomes will successfully achieve quality assurance. The intention of the QACLS is to ensure that the sector can easily identify good quality training and development and trust that courses and qualifications identified and funded by the government meet their needs. The quality standards developed are a bespoke measure of quality learning and development for the adult social care workforce. They are designed to set a benchmark for quality training delivery and support employers to make informed choices.

If I am an endorsed provider with Skills for Care, can I apply for quality assurance through the Quality Assured Care Learning Service?

Yes, if you are an existing endorsed provider to the now closed scheme you can apply to become quality assured through the QACLS irrespective of whether your organisation is a Skills for Care endorsed training provider.

Do I have to be quality assured for the courses I deliver to be eligible for funding through the new funding scheme?

Over time, it is the government's ambition that all training and development identified or funded through the workforce programmes will be quality assured by the Quality Assured Care Learning Service. We recognise that this represents a significant change for the sector and will take time to achieve, therefore quality assurance of training provider's courses and qualifications will occur in phases.

Phase one

During the 2024 – 2025 financial year training providers will be able to apply to be quality assured. Employers will be able to claim funding for courses and qualifications identified in the Adult Social Care Learning and Development Support Scheme that are not quality assured.

Phase two

In the 2025 – 2026 financial year courses and qualifications delivered by training providers that have been quality assured will be identified as preferred options for the sector. Employers will be able to claim funding for courses and qualifications identified in the Adult Social Care Learning and Development Support Scheme that are not quality assured.

Phase three

In the 2026 – 2027 financial year only courses and qualifications delivered by training providers that have been quality assured will be eligible for funding or inclusion in the Care Workforce Pathway. Employers will not be able to claim funding for courses and qualifications identified in the Adult Social Care Learning and Development Support Scheme that are not quality assured.

How do I become quality assured?

Training providers applying to the QACLS will have to provide evidence which meets the quality standards designed for all training providers delivering to the adult social care sector, as well as providing evidence for the quality standards related to specific accredited qualification(s) and/or Oliver McGowan Mandatory Training on Learning Disability and Autism.

If you would like to find out more about the Quality Assured Care Learning Service and how you can apply to be quality assured, you should read the information provided on the Skills for Care website.

If, after reading the guidance and completing the self-assessment you think your organisation can meet the quality standards, please apply here.

What are the quality standards?

Training providers applying to the QACLS will have to provide evidence which meets the quality standards designed for all training providers delivering to the adult social care sector, as well as providing evidence for the quality standards related to specific accredited qualification(s) and/or the quality framework for Oliver McGowan Mandatory Training on Learning Disability and Autism. You can view the quality standards by visiting the Skills for Care website.

How were the quality standards developed?

They were developed with a working group comprised of training providers, awarding organisations and care providers as well as Skills for Care.

Will I get feedback if I am unsuccessful?

If your organisation has NOT been successful in demonstrating that you meet the quality standards, we will advise you which quality standard(s) your organisation has not provided sufficient evidence for and why. You then should:

- re-read the guidance and review your self-assessment
- if you find alternative evidence, amend your application and resubmit it.
- in the event that you cannot find alternative sufficient evidence we encourage your organisation to review its current practices.

If I am unsuccessful, can I reapply?

Yes. If you find alternative sufficient evidence you will be able to amend your application and resubmit it

I am a care provider – why is the Quality Assured Care Learning Service important to me?

The quality standards are a bespoke measure of quality learning and development for the adult social care workforce. They are designed to set a benchmark for quality training delivery and support employers to make informed choices. The QACLS will review the quality of individual courses and qualifications delivered by training providers to ensure that training and development is of good quality, easily accessible, meets the needs of the workforce and users of care services, and is trusted by the sector.

Who can apply to have their courses quality assured?

The QACLS will be open to all training providers who meet the eligibility criteria.

My organisation is a Skills for Care endorsed training provider, do I need to apply to the Quality Assured Care Learning Service or will my endorsement be automatically transferred?

The QACLS and the Skills for Care endorsement scheme are not linked so you will need to apply to the QACLS in order for your training courses and/or qualifications to be quality assured.

We are a care provider that delivers training in-house, can I apply to have my training courses and/or qualifications quality assured through the QACLS?

Courses and qualifications that are delivered and assessed internally are eligible for reimbursement, provided that employers can provide appropriate evidence as outlined in the Learning and Development Support Scheme guidance.

My organisation holds a licence to deliver the Skills for Care licenced programmes, which part of the application form do we need to complete?

If you are only applying to have delivery of Skills for Care licenced programmes quality assured then you only need to complete application form parts 1 and 2.

Can local authorities apply to have their training courses and/or qualifications quality assured through the QACLS?

Yes, a local authority who meets the eligibility criteria can apply to the QACLS to have their training courses and/or qualifications quality assured.

My organisation has developed our own version of learning disability and autism training, can this be quality assured under part 5 of this application?

No, only training providers who are employing trainers that have been approved to deliver Oliver's Training and are using the standardised materials provided by NHS England are eligible to be quality assured.

More information on delivering the training can be found on NHSE's webpage on Oliver's Training.

How were the quality measures for Oliver's Training developed?

Skills for Care convened a working group of individuals with lived experience of learning disability and/or autism in Spring 2024. The three quality measures developed and agreed by the working group represent the key points that the group felt were of the most importance for the successful delivery of Oliver's Training to the adult social care sector.

How can my organisation start delivering The Oliver McGowan Mandatory Training on Learning Disability and Autism?

If you would like to get involved in Oliver's Training as an expert by experience, an employer or an education provider, please visit the NHSE website and submit an expression of interest.

When will the accreditation process for Oliver's Training begin?

NHS England has an approved trainer process in place for Oliver's Training that will be replaced by an accreditation process when an accreditation body is appointed. When the awarded organisation is confirmed, information will be published on the NHSE webpage: Oliver McGowan Mandatory Training on Learning Disability and Autism – Champions and communicated via enews.

How will the accreditation process fit with Skills for Care's Quality Assured Care Learning Service?

We will work with the Department of Health and Social Care, NHS England, and the appointed accreditation body to ensure there is clarity on how these two processes fit together and to avoid any duplication in the process.

Appendix 4: Verification review

All training providers who are successful in their application to have their qualification and learning programme offer quality assured will be subject to regular verification reviews conducted by the Skills for Care Audit Team. The purpose of verification is to ensure that:

- training providers continue to meet or exceed the quality standards and/or the quality framework for the Oliver McGowan Mandatory Training on Learning Disability and Autism (Oliver's Training)
- training providers continue to implement and act upon the policies and activities submitted within the application stage
- changes over time are noted and addressed
- training providers are acting in accordance with the agreements they have made as part of the QACLS e.g. Code of Conduct, Sub-Licence Agreement.

Most training providers can expect an initial review approximately six to nine months after their successful application.

Following this initial review, the training provider will be advised when they can expect their next verification review. The second review will occur within one to two years of the first. The timeline will be dependent on the outcome of the initial review and training providers will be advised as to when to expect their next review.

The review cycle will continue in this manner for as long as the training provider retains their quality assured status. Training providers will be alerted to an upcoming review via email. Details will be supplied as to any information which needs to be provided or confirmed and any further evidence required along with a timeline in which the review will be conducted.

If an issue is identified, Skills for Care will alert the training provider to the issue and advise what action needs to be taken. If the training provider addresses the issue and resubmits before the deadline then no further action will occur. If the training provider fails to address the issue and/or meet the deadline then the training provider will lose their quality assured status. They will receive an email detailing the decision and implications.
